Greetings:

Greetings to all attending and participating in the 1982 Texas Junior Miss Pageant.

To those who have been participating in the activities during this past week, I extend my congratulations. I am sure this has been an unforgettable experience for each of you.

I know I share the views of all those who gather to enjoy this event, when I wish all the contestants well.
I am sure that each of you is a winner in your own way.

Sincere best wishes for a most successful 1982 Texas

A hole new way to see Texas.

Collect the kids, pack a picnic lunch and see a side of Texas you'll never forget... the inside.

As awesome and fascinating as Texas topside, Natural Bridge Caverns is an underground fantasy of timeless sculpture and lustrous colors formed from limestone over the last 140,000,000 years. The constant drip of water inside the caverns reminds you that the shapes and formations are constantly changing and have been for centuries.

Right here in Texas. The caverns are easy to reach, just north of San Antonio and southwest of New Braunfels. Follow Natural Bridge Caverns Road off I-35.

Dear Parents, Visitors, and Friends,
Welcome to New Braunfels and the 1982 Texas' Junior Miss Program. Now in its 25th Silver Anniversary year the program recognizes outstanding senior girls thru scholarships. The winner will compete in Mobile, Alabama, and represent Texas in the National Program. Please notice that our program is one that awards knowledge, talent, and personality in a dignified manner.

There are many who deserve credit for our program. A special thank you goes to the State and National Sponsors, and the Colleges and Universities for the scholarships. Also, there are numerous clubs, organizations, merchants, host families, and many volunteers who have spent countless hours in preparation and planning.

On behalf of the New Braunfels Jaycees, we are proud to present to you the 1982 Texas' Junior Miss Program.

In the Spirit of Junior Miss,

Dedication Synonymous with State Committees

Dorothy Lambert, Producer

Dorothy Lambert attended Southwest Texas State University where she was a member of the "Strutters." She has shown her talent by staging as many as 200 students at one recital, having as many as 16 different classes for these recitals. She selects her own music and stage decorations for the productions as well as all the costumes. As a member of the Dorothy Keck Dancers, she has performed at Spurs basketball games and during "Night in Old San Antonio." She is now teaching at the Dorothy Keck School of Dance in San Antonio as well as her own classes in Somerset, Texas, where she also stages recitals. She resides in San Antonio with two sons. Also a member of the Texas Association of Teachers of Dance, Dorothy served as Production Director for the 1980 and 1981 Texas' Junior Miss Program.

Expertise in Action

Joan Slocum, Choreographer

Joan Slocum is the owner and instructor of the New Braunfels Dance Studio, teaching ballet, tap, jazz and acrobatics. She has been actively involved in dancing for nineteen years, participating in such activities as appearing on the Ted Mack television show and dancing in San Antonio's Little Theatre productions of "Gypsy" and "Unsinkable Molly Brown." She had the great opportunity to have studied for a short time in New York from teachers such as Charles Kelly, Frank Hatchett, Roni Mahler and others. Joan has served as choreographer for state programs in the past years. Her routines are continually creative, exciting, graceful and coordinated.

Mr. E. C. Ketler, Photographer

Mr. Elden C. Ketler, a native of Ohio, is a life member of the Society of Photographers in Industry, and a member of the Professional Photographers of America. He attended Kent State and has studied all aspects of photography in New York and Massachusetts, as well as graphic arts in Dallas, Chicago and Wichita, Kansas. In 1945, Mr. Ketler opened a studio in Victoria where he served many industrial clients in advertising and public relations. He supplied photographs for a daily newspaper column. He has been recognized by The Society of Electron Microscopy in Galveston and the University of Texas in Austin for photographic procedures used with the electron microscope. He has been photographer for the state program for 3 years.

Nan W. Langford, Pianist

Nan W. Langford has worked with the Texas' Junior Miss Program for 11 years, serving as host parent, talent advisor, pageant pianist and a member of the Texas' Junior Miss Board of Directors. Nan has studied piano since the age of 5 years and is a graduate of the University of Oklahoma. A vocalist, as well as pianist, she has performed professionally and is currently the pianist for the First Baptist Church. Mrs. Langford, the widow of the late Dr. O. L. Langford, has three children, Mike, 25, Dick, 22 and Kim, 19.

Audrey Schroeder, Publicity

Audrey has a BA in Radio & Television from North Texas State University and is listed in Outstanding Young Women of America.

She has served in various areas of Junior Miss where she has been the Staging & Production Chairman, Emcee, Judge, and Co-Chairman of both Local and State programs.

Audrey teaches both in the public and parochial schools and works with a Youth Choir.

She is married to Bill Schroeder and they have two sons, Chris and Eric.

Thomas C. Brever, M.D., Physician

A cum laude graduate of the University of Texas at Austin and the University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston, Tx. Dr. Brever did his internship at St. Mary's Hospital, Long Beach, California, and his residency at the Long Beach V.A. Hospital. Dr. Brever is board certified in Internal Medicine and has been practicing medicine in New Braunfels for 2½ years. He has been with the state program for the past 3 years. Dr. Brever resides in New Braunfels with his wife, Roslyn, and three children, Misty, Brent and Kelsey Leigh.

Mistress of Ceremonies

Christi Bueche

Holding the New Braunfels' Junior Miss title, Christi also captured the State title where she won the Poise and Appearance awards at both levels and Youth Fitness at her local competition in 1977.

Competing for the America's Junior Miss

She attended Southwest Texas State University in San Marcos where she received her degree in Fashion Merchandising in 1981.

Residing in San Antonio, Christi does professional modeling with S.A. Models Inc. and is employed by Frost Brothers.

Master of Ceremonies

Carl Wigglesworth

Carl is the Co-Host of the Morning Magazine on WOAI Radio, where he is also a salesman.

He is an active participant in many civic areas, including the Texas State Arts & Crafts Fair where he is on the Board of Directors.

Being very familiar with the Junior Miss concepts, Carl has judged the Hill Country's Junior Miss Program for the past two years.

Philosophy Of America's Junior Miss Program

There Is A Difference

The America's Junior Miss Program, Inc. is a non-profit organization which annually honors the nation's ideal high school senior girls and rewards these outstanding young ladies with national recognition and with scholarships for the furtherance of their education. The objectives envisioned by the founders of the America's Junior Miss Program required three important parts to stimulate the imagination of not just exception, but all teen-age girls:

1. A goal
2. A framework
3. An incentive

THE GOAL is the establishment of an ideal . . . the point of development of the whole girl to which all aspire. This goal was not to be an impossible dream, but a well-rounded individual, as well prepared as possible to accept the responsibilities of adult life. This young lady was to be—and is—the embodiment of a well-personality; physically, mentally, and morally. Because she does exist, she can be, and is, an inspiration to other young girls to set their goals higher.

THE FRAMEWORK is the pageantry . . . the selection process. This provides the excitement which youth constantly seeks. But it does so in a completely healthy environment . . . one in which even the most particular clergyman or parent could have no objection. And the framework itself contributes to the education of the participant in learning to live with others, in broadening her experiences and in travel itself. Literally thousands of adults all over the country, by organizing and conducting local and state pageants, show the young ladies of their community that they do care . . . that it is important to try to improve. Without the pageantry, the excitement, the opportunities of scholarship awards, the recognition of accomplishment and the sheer joy of participating with other girls, the "brainy" few would—as in the past—be the only ones to reap the satisfaction of accomplishment. The framework of the pageantry opens new vistas to many young ladies who would otherwise never realize their own potentials.

THE INCENTIVES are the scholarships . . . the rewards of accomplishment, yet, although they are the rewards, they are not the "END." They are but the means to the end . . . the fullest possible development of the whole woman. They make it possible for the girl who might have a dream to try harder to improve herself, to enjoy the enchantment of participating, and perhaps, to continue on toward a personal goal through education . . . a step which, under different circumstances, might well be impossible.

JUNIOR MISS OBSERVES SILVER ANNIVERSARY

America's Junior Miss for 1981, Kim Smith, of North Carolina, receives a big hug from California's Kristi Becker, and the applause of Illinois' Laura Kofoid and Virginia's Betsy Fee at the climax of the 24th annual national finals in Mobile, Ala. Kim, winner of a $42,000 in college scholarship along with the title, will participate in the Silver Anniversary Junior Miss festivities next Spring, passing honors along to her successor.

Ike was President.

Ted Williams won his sixth batting championship.

Alaska and Hawaii were on the threshold of joining the union.

A humble Italian priest was elected Pope John XXIII.

The Beatles, a Dallas bookstore, man's leap into space, O.J. Simpson, Vietnam, skateboards and Watergate were hidden in the future.

The year was 1958, and it marked the beginning of the Junior Miss program.

This unique competition for high school senior girls, observing its Silver Anniversary national finals in 1981-82, has developed into one of the nation's most respected youth activities.

It was launched by the Mobile, Ala., Jaycees in 1958 to spotlight achievement among young people, and is the outgrowth of the community's Azalea Trail

Festival, which itself dates back to the late Twenties.

Junior Miss focuses attention on the positive accomplishments of young people. It encourages and rewards excellence with public recognition and college scholarships, and the aims and standards have been the same since the beginning.

While the objectives are unchanged, crowns, tiaras, elaborate gowns, rose bouquets, ramps and other "beauty contest" fixtures have been discontinued to give Junior Miss the setting, atmosphere and format appropriate to its ideals.

The growth in the past quarter century has been impressive.

Eighteen states sent representatives to the national finals in 1958. All fifty states, the District of

First Junior Miss winner was Phyllis Whitenack. Program was called the Junior Miss America Pageant in 1958.

Program/ Annual covers of past reflect Junior Miss progress. Competition shared attention with Mobile Azalea Trail at the beginning in 1958. In 1965 Junior Miss national finals was presented on network television for the first time.

to others and her efforts in her own personal development — morally, academically and physically. Her creativity, performing ability, poise and perception are among considerations, also.

The organization is a non-profit corporation governed by 42 Mobile civic, business, religious and educational leaders.

The 52 state-level and the local competitions in some 1,450 communities are sponsored and conducted by Jaycees, Jaycettees, Lions, Kiwanians, Exchange, Key and Women's Business Clubs, sororities, newspapers, radio and TV stations and other civic and social groups.

Columbia and Puerto Rico are represented now.

A couple of hundred Jaycees established the program in 1958. Now there are 30,000 volunteers — parents, business people, educators, clubs and sororities — participating throughout the United States.

Scholarship awards to Junior Misses this year will total more than $2 million. The first awards list was $10,000.

The first America's Junior Miss, Phyllis Whitenack, of Bluefield, West Va., received a $5,000 scholarship. The 1981 winner, Kim Smith, received a total of $42,000 in scholarships, including the $25,000 to the America's Junior Miss title winner.

The five finalists in the 1981 competition won a total of $96,000 in Junior Miss awards at the local, state and national levels.

The 18 contestants, the orchestra and the back stage workers almost outnumbered the audience in 1958. Today 26,000 high school senior girls take part; millions view the national finals on television, and the in-person audiences at local, state and national finals exceed 500,000 people.

In 1965, eight years after its beginning, the Junior Miss program was ready for two major moves. The first was into the new multi-million dollar Mobile Municipal Auditorium, site of the national competition since. Also, the 1965 National Finals marked the first national prime time network television presentation for Junior Miss.

There are two major distinguishing features which set the Junior Miss program apart from all others. — the judging system and the organization.

Much of the evaluation of Junior Misses is based on a girl's service

Important, too, are the help and recognition by some 200 colleges and universities who provide scholarships at the local, state and national levels.

Another vital factor is the support of the National Sponsors, who provide funds, enthusiasm, and expertise in a variety of forms and areas.

Volunteers, educators, sponsors, the Junior Misses, their parents, all have helped build the Junior Miss program, as it celebrates its silver anniversary, into the No. 1 scholarship activity of its kind for America's young women.

Elaborate crown, gown, sash and roses were much in evidence in the 1963 portrait of Diane Sawyer (now a CBS-TV newscaster). Family aspects of the Junior Miss program are reflected in portrait of 1978 winner Kim Crosby and her family.

Most impressive to me is how such young people could accomplish so much in such a short time as these Junior Misses have. I am enthusiastic and delighted at this whole program; and stimulated by the interviews with the girls. I hope I'm invited back next year.

OBSERVATIONS

Commentary About Junior Miss Program By Members of 1981 Judges Panel

VINCE DOOLEY
University of Georgia Football Coach

In each Junior Miss you look for role models, the leaders. This same quality is the key to successful football teams. You seek solid individuals others will look up to. Junior Misses represent what a lot of young girls aspire to be.

SUZANNE MINK
Director of Washington Cathedral Fund

Enthralled, inspired . . . I just can't say enough about the program and the girls taking part. They are so well-rounded, so capable, such outstanding individuals, every one of them. I'm sure the Junior Miss panel was deeply moved by the judging experience.

LOUIS A. WILLIAMS
Rear Admiral, U.S Navy

Junior Miss contestants are completely involved in constructive activities all day. They are intelligent and talented, and they have driven to the top. The caliber of young women competing in this program holds great promise for the future of our country.

STEPHEN DORFF
Songwriter, composer and conductor

What impresses me most is the remarkable poise and talent these 17-and 18-year-old girls possess for their age. They are so aware, and they seem to have answers for all the questions we presented during the interviews.

She's an achiever—a doer and a thinker with personality, poise and talent. And she's just one of thousands of positive, caring, committed young people who will build this country's future. At Kraft, we think it's important to help provide the encouragement and support these young people deserve. And we express that support through the America's Junior Miss Pageant, with scholarship aid and with public recognition. That's why year-round state and national sponsorship of this salute to America's youth has become a proud tradition at Kraft.

MEET AMERICA'S JUNIOR MISS KIMBERLY ANN SMITH

Kimberly Ann Smith, a 17-year-old blonde who excels as a scholar and a dancer, is America's Junior Miss for 1981.

Kim topped the biggest field in Junior Miss history — 52 outstanding high school senior girls from each state, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico — in the 24th national finals at Mobile, Ala.

She won $42,000 in Junior Miss scholarship awards, including the $25,000 first place award and two $5000 scholarships for top honors in the Creative & Performing Arts (talent) division and the Poise & Appearance division.

Millions of TV viewers watched the awarding of the Junior Miss medallion and scroll to the Raleigh, N.C. miss by the 1980 winner Julie Bryan and TV host Lorne Greene, in the first "Junior Miss in the round" presentation.

Kim's interests and pursuits cover a broad spectrum from the physical to the scholarly. She likes modeling, hiking, gymnastics, track, swimming and tennis in addition to dancing. And, she was a Presidential Scholar, a member of the National Honor Society, a cheerleader and participated in the Latin and French Clubs at Broughton High School.

Now, she is in the whirl of a year of adventure, travel, interviews and appearances as America's Junior Miss. Included on the schedule: the "Today Show," the American Academy of Achievement, New York Press Conference, the International Key Club Convention, Senior Bowl Football Classic and orientation visits to the headquarter facilities of the Junior Miss national sponsors. The grand finale will be the return to Mobile in the Spring for all the fun and excitement of the Silver Anniversary Junior Miss national finals.

Kim plans to use her Junior Miss scholarships to further studies at New York City with hopes for a career as a professional dancer. She has been dancing since she was five years old, and her Creative & Performing Arts presentation in the Junior Miss national finals was a dazzling ballet-jazz-gymnastics display to the tune, "Be A Clown."

America's Junior Miss family demonstrates the thrill and joy of Kim's selection for top honors in the 1981 national finals. From left to right are her mother Bonnie, father Roger, an attorney in Raleigh, and her brother Roger.

HOW JUNIOR MISSES ARE JUDGED . . .

At all levels of the Junior Miss Program — local, state and national — judging standards and basis of selection are the same. The emphasis is on excellence in scholarship, personality, character, physical well-being, creativity and in dealings with fellow humans. Half of the judging procedures are “behind-the-scenes,” in scholastic achievement (15 per cent) and the judges interview, weighed at 35 per cent of the overall format. On stage presentations make up the other half of the judging — physical fitness, poise and appearance, and creative and performing arts.

Scholastic Achievement 15%

A panel of qualified educators review and rate transcripts of grades and scores of scholastic tests and college entrance examinations.

Judges Interview 35%

In a 10 minute interview and discussion session with each Junior Miss, the judges panel looks for perception, a sense of values, clarity of expression, concern and ability in human relations.

Creative & Performing Arts 20%

Judging is based on originality, technical ability appropriateness of selection and costume, stage presence during performance of a stage presentation of a vocal, instrumental, painting, dance, etc.

Physical Fitness 15%

Coordination, stamina, agility, posture and carriage in sports attire are considered in an overall evaluation of health and physical well-being.

Poise and Appearance 15%

Grace, grooming, poise, posture and carriage in evening dress is considered along with coordination and composure.

EXCEED
$2 MILLION

Local and state Junior Miss committees, supported and recognized by college educators throughout the nation, are expected to boost the total awards list for 1981-82 to a record $2.2 million.

Some 200 colleges and universities participate in the Junior Miss awards structure each year, contributing scholarships to winners and finalists at the local and state levels.

In addition, seven colleges and universities offer Junior Miss scholarships nationally — that is, to winners and finalists in each of the 52 state-level competitions.

This unique acceptance by educators of Junior Miss contestants as prime prospective students has played a vital role in the record awards available to Junior Misses in the past several years.

Hundreds and hundreds of girls have shared in approximately $2 million in awards at local, state and national levels in each of the past three or four years.

A new record total is expected for the Silver Anniversary national finals, with the following breakdown:

National level	$108,000
Preliminaries	20,000
Finals	70,000
Sponsor Awards	18,000
State Level	1,280,000
Scholarships	990,000

National Finals Highlights for the 52
Junior Misses of the Class of 1981

On-stage presentations by Junior Misses are whirlwind of music, action, grace and color — Physical Fitness Division (top) and Poise and Appearance (below).

At Baccalaureate services, Dr. Joyce Brothers presented diplomas to 13 Junior Misses who missed their own commencement exercises. Above, Maryland's Tricia Sol receives honors.

California's Kristi Becker was selected for top honors in scholastic achievement — a preliminary awards and overall award — among the 52 Junior Misses in 24th national finals.

Alabama's Junior Miss Kim Gilliland, in picture at left, receives a sailor's hat as memento of visit to the battleship USS Alabama, memorial to veterans anchored in Mobile Bay.

Fifty-two Junior Misses of 1981 and 1980 winner Julie Bryan pose at Bellgrath Gardens. Tours of Fort Conde, Oakleigh Mansion and other Mobile landmarks were also part of visit.

Each of the Junior Misses pictured on this page received major awards during the 24th annual America's Junior Miss national finals at Mobile, ranging up to the $42,000 in scholarships to the 1981 winner, Kim Smith, of North Carolina. Above are the nine young women picked for awards in the first preliminary, (left to right), Kim Smith, North Carolina; Colleen Duplissie, Maine;

Betsy Fee, Virginia; Kristi Becker, California; Leigh Skelton, Indiana; Deanna Keeling, West Virginia; Julie Leff, Washington; Sarah Zachos, New Hampshire, and Tracy Pulciani, Massachusetts. The five 1981 national finalists won more than $96,000 in local, state and national Junior Miss awards.

SPARK—PLUGS AMONG 30,000 JUNIOR MISS VOLUNTEERS

The pace-setters and representative individuals from among the 30,000 volunteers who plan and conduct the Junior Miss program throughout the United States received a public salute for their efforts and dedication during the 1981 national finals activities in Mobile.

The occasion: the annual State Junior Miss Awards Luncheon attended by state chairmen and committee members, parents and families of the 1981 Junior Misses, and national board representatives.

California and Louisiana won major honors. The California organization was selected as producer of the Most Outstanding State Junior Miss program for the fifth time and third straight year. In addition, California's C.R. "Ting" Guggiana was named the Outstanding State Chairman of the Year.

Louisiana's committee, under the chairmanship of Pearl Beaupre, was picked as presenting the Most Improved State Program of 1981.

Guggiana, a Certified Public Accountant, a member of the Santa Rosa City Council for 11 years and Mayor for two terms, has been involved with the Junior Miss program since 1965, and has been a part of the California state organization since 1970.

As state chairman he has guided an active and progressive committee which this year boosted its scholarships by 38% to a total of $26,000. Local participation was greatly increased, especially in the populous Los Angeles and San Diego areas.

Second best state program honors went to the Indiana Junior Miss organization, this past year chaired by Tim Wolfe. The State of Washington received the award for third best state program. Rod and Linda Lewison were chairmen through the state finals, before turning over leadership to Dennis and Babs Hubner Pfaff.

Special recognition awards in the category of Outstanding State Program went to Oklahoma, Kentucky, Alabama, Mississippi, Pennsylvania, Idaho and Michigan.

Four state chairmen received special recognition awards for their leadership efforts with their state programs. They were Billy Harris of South Carolina, Barney Winger of Iowa, Ron Rafter of Illinois and Kenneth and Pat Clark of Texas.

The new Louisiana state organization made tremendous progress in its first year in Lafayette. They achieved 70% increase in scholarships, topping all states in percentage increase, and total scholarships moved into the top five overall. In addition, they developed outstanding publicity and community support. Mrs. Beaupre, who led the effort, is the mother of Tammy Beaupre, Louisiana's Junior Miss of 1979.

Four other state organizations also received special recognition awards for their much-improved programs. They were Rhode Island, Montana, Ohio and Tennessee.
